

Fold on dotted line.

Cut the solid lines.

Glue this side to the inside of the right flap.

Write questions or vocabulary terms on the outside of each flap, answers on the inside.

The image shows a template for a study aid. It consists of five vertical columns of equal width, separated by solid lines. A horizontal dotted line runs across the top of the page, indicating where to fold. Below the dotted line, there are five rectangular boxes, one in each column, defined by solid lines. These boxes are intended for writing questions or vocabulary terms on the outside of the flaps. The area below each box is the inside of the flap, intended for writing answers.
